

Housing dream fading

AUSTRALIA'S future generations have little hope of owning their own home, a poll has found.

And parents' worst fears look set to come true — kids are less likely to leave the nest in future.

More than 70 per cent of respondents to a poll on housing affordability believe home ownership will not be possible for future generations.

And almost 20 per cent reckon the present crisis will deteriorate further.

The poll was conducted on www.affordablehome.com.au, a housing information website.

Residential Development Council executive director Ross Elliot urged the Government to tackle housing relief.
